Still has some links to work out. Control scheme resets each round, which always forces me to take a few seconds before I can play to verify how they're set up. My friend and I experienced some weird teleporting while playing. Overall the game is really fun and I can tell it's going to turn out great! But you can definitely tell it's still a work in progress.. I enjoyed the game a lot! I rate it in the high 8s or low 9s depending on the day.. First and foremost I was following the development of this game for quite some time. It caught my eye and I was really interested in it. I understand that the game has a small team but it was in development for two years and is now released as early access. Generally that is a death sentence for indie games because all the hype is lost and leaves a bad taste in the players mouth to have a not even 1/8th finished game. At its current state I don't believe its worth it, and even if it did get to that point it would not have enough traction to kick-off. Not to mention the fact that people with equivalent resources have made complete games with 7 day game jam competitions. What you get right now: Buggy lobbies Desyncing Few game modes Few power ups Shoddy controls A map maker that barely functions Buggy UI Save your money. If this game is up your alley follow it and wish-list it. At its current state it is nowhere near completed.. I first played this game at Gamescom. After that i followed it for a while. The devs are very active and listen to their community. This game is perfect for chill evenings with friends. The controls are a bit tricky, but if you play it for a while you can get very good at it. I really like Tiny Tanks. Rounds can end in 10 seconds or you can fight until the whole map is a mess. Yeah, it's "very" early access, yeah, there are bugs. If you play with people from across the world you will encounter warping. Give the devs a little more time and this game will be a must have for every gaming night.. This has great potential.
